DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Texas Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a women's clothes retailer. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as an executive director. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by an ETA Form 9089, Application for Permanent Employment Certification, approved by the United States Department of Labor (DOL). Upon reviewing the petition, the director determined that the evidence did not establish that the beneficiary possessed either a bachelor's or master's degree in the major field listed on the ETA Form 9089. The director denied the petition accordingly.

The record shows that the appeal is properly filed, timely and makes a specific allegation of error in law or fact. The procedural history in this case is documented by the record and incorporated into the decision. Further elaboration of the procedural history will be made only as necessary.

As set forth in the director's January 18, 2013 denial, the single issue in this case is whether the beneficiary possessed either a bachelor's or master's degree in the major field listed on the ETA Form 9089.

In pertinent part, section 203(b)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(2), provides immigrant classification to members of the professions holding advanced degrees or their equivalent and whose services are sought by an employer in the United States. An advanced degree is a United States academic or professional degree or a foreign equivalent degree above the baccalaureate level. 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(k)(2). The regulation further states: "A United States baccalaureate degree or a foreign equivalent degree followed by at least five years of progressive experience in the specialty shall be considered the equivalent of a master's degree. If a doctoral degree is customarily required by the specialty, the alien must have a United States doctorate or a foreign equivalent degree." Id.

The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted upon appeal.¹

As noted above, the ETA Form 9089 in this matter is certified by the DOL. The DOL's role is limited to determining whether there are sufficient workers who are able, willing, qualified and available and whether the employment of the alien will adversely affect the wages and working conditions of workers in the United States similarly employed. Section 212(a)(5)(A)(i) of the Act; 20 C.F.R. § 656.1(a).

It is significant that none of the above inquiries assigned to the DOL, or the remaining regulations implementing these duties under 20 C.F.R. § 656, involve a determination as to whether or not the alien is qualified for a specific immigrant classification or even the job offered. This fact has not gone unnoticed by federal circuit courts. See Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F. 2d 1305, 1309 (9th Cir. 1984); Madany v. Smith, 696 F.2d 1008, 1012-1013 (D.C. Cir. 1983).

A United States baccalaureate degree is generally found to require four years of education. Matter of Shah, 17 I&N Dec. 244 (Reg'l. Comm'r. 1977). This decision involved a petition filed under 8 U.S.C. §1153(a)(3) as amended in 1976. At that time, this section provided:

Visas shall next be made available . . . to qualified immigrants who are members of the professions

The Act added section 203(b)(2)(A) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. §1153(b)(2)(A), which provides:

Visas shall be made available . . . to qualified immigrants who are members of the professions holding advanced degrees or their equivalent

Significantly, the statutory language used prior to Matter of Shah, 17 I&N Dec. at 244, is identical to the statutory language used subsequent to that decision but for the requirement that the immigrant hold an advanced degree or its equivalent. The Joint Explanatory Statement of the Committee of Conference, published as part of the House of Representatives Conference Report on the Act, provides that “[in] considering equivalency in category 2 advanced degrees, it is anticipated that the alien must have a bachelor's degree with at least five years progressive experience in the professions.” H.R. Conf. Rep. No. 955, 101st Cong., 2nd Sess. 1990, 1990 U.S.C.C.A.N. 6784, 1990 WL 201613 at *6786 (Oct. 26, 1990).

At the time of enactment of section 203(b)(2) of the Act in 1990, it had been almost thirteen years since Matter of Shah was issued. Congress is presumed to have intended a four-year degree when it stated that an alien “must have a bachelor's degree” when considering equivalency for second preference immigrant visas. We must assume that Congress was aware of the agency's previous treatment of a “bachelor's degree” under the Act when the new classification was enacted and did not intend to alter the agency's interpretation of that term. See Lorillard v. Pons, 434 U.S. 575, 580-81 (1978) (Congress is presumed to be aware of administrative and judicial interpretations where it adopts a new law incorporating sections of a prior law). See also 56 Fed. Reg. 60897, 60900 (Nov. 29, 1991) (an alien must have at least a bachelor's degree).

In 1991, when the final rule for 8 C.F.R. § 204.5 was published in the Federal Register, the Immigration and Naturalization Service (the Service), responded to criticism that the regulation required an alien to have a bachelor's degree as a minimum and that the regulation did not allow for the substitution of experience for education. After reviewing section 121 of the Immigration Act of 1990, Pub. L. 101-649 (1990), and the Joint Explanatory Statement of the Committee of Conference, the Service specifically noted that both the Act and the legislative history indicate that an alien must have at least a bachelor's degree:

The Act states that, in order to qualify under the second classification, alien members of the professions must hold “advanced degrees or their equivalent.” As the legislative history . . . indicates, the equivalent of an advanced degree is “a bachelor’s degree with at least five years progressive experience in the professions.” Because neither the Act nor its legislative history indicates that bachelor’s or advanced degrees must be United States degrees, the Service will recognize foreign equivalent degrees. But both the Act and its legislative history make clear that, in order to qualify as a professional under the third classification or to have experience equating to an advanced degree under the second, an alien must have at least a bachelor’s degree.

56 Fed. Reg. 60897, 60900 (Nov. 29, 1991) (emphasis added).

There is no provision in the statute or the regulations that would allow a beneficiary to qualify under section 203(b)(2) of the Act as a member of the professions holding an advanced degree with anything less than a full baccalaureate degree (plus the requisite five years of progressive experience in the specialty). More specifically, a three-year bachelor’s degree will not be considered to be the “foreign equivalent degree” to a United States baccalaureate degree. Matter of Shah, 17 I&N Dec. at 245. Where the analysis of the beneficiary’s credentials relies on work experience alone or a combination of multiple lesser degrees, the result is the “equivalent” of a bachelor’s degree rather than a “foreign equivalent degree.”² In order to have experience and education equating to an advanced degree under section 203(b)(2) of the Act, the beneficiary must have a single degree that is the “foreign equivalent degree” to a United States baccalaureate degree (plus the requisite five years of progressive experience in the specialty). 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(k)(2).

For this classification, advanced degree professional, the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(k)(3)(i)(B) requires the submission of an “official academic record showing that the alien has a United States baccalaureate degree or a foreign equivalent degree” (plus evidence of five years of progressive experience in the specialty). For classification as a member of the professions, the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(3)(ii)(C) requires the submission of “an official college or university record showing the date the baccalaureate degree was awarded and the area of concentration of study.” We cannot conclude that the evidence required to demonstrate that an alien is an advanced degree professional is any less than the evidence required to show that the alien is a professional. To do so would undermine the congressionally mandated classification scheme by allowing a lesser evidentiary standard for the more restrictive visa classification. Moreover, the commentary accompanying the proposed advanced degree professional regulation specifically states that a “baccalaureate means a bachelor’s degree received from a college or university, or an equivalent degree.” (Emphasis added.) 56 Fed. Reg. 30703, 30306 (July 5, 1991). Compare 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(k)(3)(ii)(A) (relating to aliens of exceptional ability requiring the submission of “an official academic record showing that the alien has a degree, diploma, certificate or similar award from a college, university, school or other institution of learning relating to the area of exceptional ability").

When determining whether a beneficiary is eligible for a preference immigrant visa, USCIS may not ignore a term of the labor certification, nor may it impose additional requirements. See Madany, 696 F.2d at 1015. USCIS must examine “the language of the labor certification job requirements” in order to determine what the job requires. Id. The only rational manner by which USCIS can be expected to interpret the meaning of terms used to describe the requirements of a job in labor certification is to examine the certified job offer exactly as it is completed by the prospective employer. See Rosedale Linden Park Company v. Smith, 595 F. Supp. 829, 833 (D.D.C. 1984) (emphasis added). USCIS’s interpretation of the job’s requirements, as stated on the labor certification must involve reading and applying the plain language of the labor certification application form. See id. at 834. USCIS cannot and should not reasonably be expected to look beyond the plain language of the labor certification that the DOL has formally issued or otherwise attempt to divine the employer’s intentions through some sort of reverse engineering of the ETA Form 9089.

The key to determining the job qualifications is found on ETA Form 9089 Part H. This section of the application for alien labor certification, “Job Opportunity Information,” describes the terms and conditions of the job offered. It is important that the ETA Form 9089 be read as a whole.

The required education, training, experience, and special requirements for the offered position are set forth at Part H of the ETA Form 9089. Here, Part H shows that the position requires a master’s degree, or foreign educational equivalent, in business administration and 24 months of experience in the job offered or in the alternate occupation of business manager. The petitioner will also accept a bachelor’s degree and five years of experience. In Part H.14, the petitioner will “accept any suitable combination of education, training and experience that has been found to be equivalent to the minimum educational and experience requirements through a formal work experience/education evaluation.” However, the petitioner noted in Part H.7 that no alternate fields of study would be acceptable.

The beneficiary set forth his credentials on the labor certification and signed his name, under a declaration that the contents of the form are true and correct under the penalty of perjury. On the section of the labor certification eliciting information of the beneficiary’s education, and elsewhere in the record, he states that he received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Portuguese language and literature from [REDACTED], in South Korea.

The record contains the following educational evaluations:

- An evaluation from [REDACTED]. The evaluation is dated November 5, 2012. The evaluation is signed by [REDACTED]. The evaluation describes the beneficiary’s Bachelor of Arts degree as being the equivalent of a U.S. Bachelor of Arts degree in Portuguese language and literature. When the beneficiary’s bachelor’s degree is combined with his work experience, he has the equivalent of a U.S. Bachelor of Business Administration degree.

- An evaluation from [REDACTED]. The evaluation is dated June 19, 2012. The evaluation is signed by [REDACTED]. The evaluation describes the beneficiary's Bachelor of Arts degree as being the equivalent of a U.S. Bachelor of Arts degree in Portuguese language and literature.

The labor certification and regulation cited above requires that an applicant for the proffered position have either a bachelor's or master's degree. The designated field of study on the ETA Form 9089 is business administration.

USCIS may, in its discretion, use as advisory opinions statements submitted as expert testimony. See Matter of Caron International, 19 I&N Dec. 791, 795 (Commr. 1988). However, USCIS is ultimately responsible for making the final determination regarding an alien's eligibility for the benefit sought. Id. The submission of letters from experts supporting the petition is not presumptive evidence of eligibility. USCIS may evaluate the content of the letters as to whether they support the alien's eligibility. See id. USCIS may give less weight to an opinion that is not corroborated, in accord with other information or is in any way questionable. Id. at 795. See also Matter of Soffici, 22 I&N Dec. 158, 165 (Commr. 1998) (citing Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg. Commr. 1972)); Matter of D-R-, 25 I&N Dec. 445 (BIA 2011)(expert witness testimony may be given different weight depending on the extent of the expert's qualifications or the relevance, reliability, and probative value of the testimony).

The evaluations are not persuasive in establishing that the beneficiary's education from South Korea is equivalent to either a U.S. master's or bachelor's degree in business administration. Neither evaluation compares the beneficiary's education in South Korea to either a U.S. master's or bachelor's degree program in business. The evaluators also fail to address the actual courses of study followed by the beneficiary. Moreover, none of the evaluations is peer-reviewed or relies on peer-reviewed materials in reaching their unsubstantiated conclusions.

On appeal, counsel explains that the petitioner intended to limit the primary educational requirement's field of study to business administration while not limiting the secondary alternative field of study. Counsel further explains that the answer to Part H, item 7 is pertinent only to the primary educational requirement, but not to the alternative, because the ETA Form 9089 does not have a space to designate the field of study for the secondary educational requirement like the blank found in Part H, item 4-B for the master's degree. Although a specific blank is not provided for the alternate educational field of study, ample room is provided on the ETA Form 9089 for the petitioner to specify what it intends. For example, Part H, item 14, provides a general blank entitled "specific skills or other requirements" that could have been used. However, this was not done. Nothing on the ETA Form 9089 states that the petitioner would allow a candidate to qualify with at least a bachelor's degree in any field. The petitioner attempts to have Part H read as a non-cohesive statement about what is required for the job, however, nothing on the ETA Form 9089 indicates that items 7, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, or 14 would apply only to the answer given in item 4 or in item 8. Instead, those blocks all contain general questions that apply, on their face, to the job in general.

Counsel also states that on the ETA Form 9089, item 14, it indicates that the petitioner will accept “any suitable combination of education, training, and experience.” In order to qualify for the second preference classification, the position must require at least a bachelor’s degree and five years of progressively responsible experience in the specified field. If the petitioner will accept the equivalent of a bachelor’s and rather relies on experience, then the position would no longer qualify for the second preference classification since anyone with experience in that field can perform the duties, regardless of one’s educational qualifications.

In this case, while it may be viewed that the beneficiary may hold at least the foreign degree equivalent of a U.S. bachelor’s degree, his studies do not indicate that he has ever received either a bachelor’s or master’s degree in business administration. Therefore, the beneficiary does not qualify for preference visa classification under section 203(b)(2) of the Act.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
